YOUNG WOMAN'S EXPERIENCE.

To have been bitten by a rattlesnake and then chased by an infuriated bull, was the experience of 17-year-old Sarah Brandt, daughter of a farmer three miles south of Galeton, Pa.

Brandt had been on a visit to a girl friend over toward the Kettle Creek region, several miles from her home, and was accompanied by a fox terrier.

Returning toward evening her attention was attracted by a clump of wild roses, from which she was minded to pluck a bouquet to carry home.

The flowers grew on an embankment almost as high as the girl's head, and it was with considerable difficulty that she gained a position from which she was able to reach the coveted roses.

She was compelled to cling to an alder bush with her left hand as she reached to pluck the blossoms with her right hand.

The little dog ran up toward the rose clump, gave a queer little bark and scampered back into the road.

The girl thought nothing of the dog's unusual action, however, until an instant later, when, without warning, a big rattlesnake sprang from its position near the wild rosebush and sank its fangs into her bare arm an inch or two above the wrist.

The girl was fully a mile from the nearest house, and started on a run to reach help before the poison became scattered through her system.

A few rods farther on she came to the meadow of a neighbor, and by crossing this field she could shorten the distance by almost a quarter of a mile.

She scaled the fence and had gained a portion of the distance across, when she heard the bellow of a bull, and, to her terror, found that she was being pursued by the angry animal.

Her little terrier, however, saved the day for her, as he ran toward the advancing bull and put up such a lively bluff that the attention of the big animal was temporarily diverted from the girl in an attack upon the dog.

By this time the screams of Miss Brandt had been heard at the farm house, and several members of the household ran to the girl's rescue just as the bull left off his unsuccessful attempt to impale the frisky little dog on his horns and had returned to the pursuit of the girl.

Fortunately for Miss Brandt, the household in which she had sought refuge was provided with a preparation to overcome the effects of a snake's bite, and the administration of this saved her life, but she was dreadfully sick for 48 hours.

Miss Brandt is peculiarly unfortunate. She was with her brother on a deer hunt last fall when at a point in the woods where he had stationed her on a "run-way," a good-sized black bear suddenly emerged from a thicket.

She became alarmed at the bear, fearing to shoot lest she should aggravate it and it should attack her. In scampering from the stump upon which she was standing watch she fell and sustained a broken wrist, her rifle having fallen upon it with violent force as she pitched headlong to the ground.

In the meantime the bear had been hiking away through the thicket as fast as his legs could carry him, and though crippled, Miss Brandt succeeded in firing the gun the given number of times for the prearranged signal of distress, and her brother, who was scarcely a quarter of a mile below her on another bench of ridge, started to find her. He came face to face with the bear as the latter was streaking for the tall timber, and one shot from his rifle sent bruin to the dust.

RAIN, HAIL AND CLOUDBURSTS.

The crippling of the telephone service has delayed news from south Rockingham's violent storm of Friday last.

It is said to have been the worst in the history of the county. It became so dark during the storm that many persons thought the sun was in eclipse and negroes were badly scared.

The storm fell with such fury that scores of persons rushed to the cellars fearing that a cyclone had struck the valley. Hailstones as large as hickory nuts beat down upon the fruit and crops and did great damage.

A cloudburst, which carried death, ruin and disaster, occurred yesterday morning near Ripley, the county seat of Jackson county, Va.

Houses were swept away, bridges demolished, barns and fences washed away and great damage done to crops.

According to reports received at Parkersburg, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Miller lost their lives, being swept down into the roaring waters of Mill creek while entrapped in their house, which was carried out into the stream.

Several railroad bridges were washed out and traffic is at a standstill.

A dispatch from Huntington, W. Va., says devastation swept the valleys of the Mud and Little Coal rivers yesterday morning, following a cloudburst after a deluge of rain which fell at the headwaters of the two streams.

A county bridge near MacKorkle was washed out and a Coal river bridge near the same point was carried away.

Mud river is at the highest stage known in history, and many houses have been

MY DOCTOR

MIGHTY FINE

Mrs. Hattie Cain of Carrsville

Thinks all the More of Her Doctor Since He Advised Her to Take Cardui.

Carrsville, Ky.—"My doctor," writes Mrs. Hattie Cain, "who advised me to take Cardui, for my troubles, is a mighty fine doctor, and I say God bless Cardui and the people who make it."

"Before I took Cardui, I suffered with female troubles for sixteen years. I would have to send for a doctor every three months, and oh how dreadfully I suffered!"

"I would cramp and have convulsions and I looked like I would die. At last I took Cardui and oh what a surprise! I found it was the medicine for me!"

"From the first bottle, I began to mend and now I am well, can do more work, can walk and go where I please and it don't hurt me, and I owe it all to Cardui."

Cardui helps sick women back to health. It has been doing this for over 50 years. It is not a laxative, or a heart or kidney medicine—it is a woman's medicine.

If you are a woman, try it.

washed away. Water is reported five feet deep on the floor of the postoffice at Griffithsville.

Many mill dams along the river have given away before the torrent. Huge trees of untrunked logs and ties swept toward the mouth of the two streams.

The greatest damage was that done to growing crops. The Baltimore and Ohio bridge spanning Mill creek, at Millwood, was washed out. No one was injured, but the entire structure of the bridge, which was 175 feet long, went to the bed of the creek.

The railroad also suffered extensive damage from landslides, of which there were 12 within four miles of Millwood.

Heavy storms did considerable damage in Charleston, W. Va., and vicinity yesterday. Many streams became torrents and swept away houses and drowned livestock.

Much damage was done to crops and the railroads also suffered, the Coal River Railroad losing several miles of track.

Hampton's Magazine for July, which has been received from its publishers in New York, presents a most attractive table of contents. The latest installment of Commander Peary's "Discovery of the North Pole" tells of his trip beyond his previous "farthest north" and presents many proofs which he refused to turn over to Congress.

The second act of Rostrand's "Chantecler" is given and Chas. E. Russell continues his attack upon the financial corruption of the Southern Pacific Railroad in California.

"A fighting chance for the city child" reveals many startling facts about diseased children in our large towns. Personalities, "Excess baggage" and "The speed kings" are most readable and the fiction of this issue is far above the average.

Collector's Office, June 15, 1910.

Notice is hereby given that the tax bills for 1910 are now in the hands of the Collector. The attention of parties interested is respectfully called to the following extract from the revenue bill of that year:

"Upon all bills paid in full by the 1st day of July, 1910, the Collector of Tax shall allow a discount of six per cent., and on all bills paid by the 1st day of September, 1910, he shall allow a discount of four per cent., and on all bills not paid on the 1st day of December, 1910, there shall be assessed and collected a penalty of five per cent. upon the amount of said bills, and on all bills remaining unpaid on the 1st day of June, 1911, damages at the rate of six per centum per annum shall be paid."
